

Group Excursions Are Making a Comeback

Group travel has made a comeback in 2015. It's hard to believe that just two years ago, group travel was at its lowest point in many years! Though the size of the average group has decreased from the traditional average of 10 cabins, this shift reflects the growing economic power of millennials, who prefer to travel in smaller groups and who set aside funds for travel, unlike their older counterparts. Maximize your commission potential and offer more boutique like excursions to grow your own group business!
